

Dwarf Leadwort

Ceratostigma Plumbaginoides

- ❁ Leadwort is a highly underrated ground cover of great beauty and considerable late-season interest. It is durable and long-lived and requires very little maintenance. Although it is slow to emerge in the spring once it breaks dormancy it grows rapidly
- ❁ It has glossy green leaves on long, trailing stems and bears 3/4 inch gentian-blue flowers that begin in early August and continue until frost. The foliage turns a lovely reddish bronze after the first frost and persists well into winter
